CHICAGO, March 26, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- Sage Clarity, a global manufacturing technology and advisory services provider, announced today the launch of the Clarity Idea Lab. The Idea Lab showcases cutting edge solutions focused on the Next Generation Manufacturing Enterprise.

Idea Lab solutions, <http://sageclarity.com/idea-lab/> advance the user experience beyond traditional enterprise software solutions for manufacturing. Solutions employ cutting edge advanced technology used in creative ways to engage the workforce. Idea lab solutions include intelligent data mining big data applications, mobile business intelligence solutions and highly interactive factory floor advanced visualization applications.

One example in the idea lab is the Factory Media Center (<http://sageclarity.com/idea-lab/factory-media-center/>) that utilizes a 90" touch screen designed to immerse plant floor workers in real-time manufacturing performance data. It brings together operators, engineers, and managers for collaboration and interaction with real-time information.

"The Factory Media Center creates a Minority Report type user experience on the plant floor," said John Oskin, CEO of Sage Clarity. "It raises the level of engagement that plant floor workers have with plant floor information. This kind of technology creates a unique user experience for the next generation hyper Informance enabled workforce of the future."

Reinventing America for the next generation workforce requires a forward thinking view of how factory workers and factory management interact with each other and the machinery around them. Idea Lab Solutions bring software and technology together for a user experience that makes it both interesting and productive for interacting with information. Sage Clarity is committed to developing new and innovative solutions that meet this criteria. Check back periodically to the Idea Lab for new and exciting solutions added to the portfolio.
